

Embassy of Italy to the People's Republic of China

The Embassy of Italy to the People's Republic of China is looking for an Health Physician, in accordance with the Italian legislation - D. Lgs. Apr 9th/2008 + subsequent modifications and supplements, and the inter Ministerial decree n. 51/ Feb 2012.

Candidates with the requisites listed below and detailed explained can submit the application by handling within 12,30 (Beijing time) of Wednesday January 27th 2016 in view of the regulations of the People's Republic of China also through the public or private institution operating in the field of health and sanitation in which they are employed. The Embassy of Italy to the People's Republic of China is located in Beijing, Sanlitun, Dong Er Jie n. 2. No other means of transmission or delivery to the Embassy shall be accepted and no exception shall be made in this respect.

Eligible candidates are local practitioners, possessing the general requisites provided under art. 38 item 4 of D. Lgs. 163/06 and possessing professional qualifications equal to those provided for by D. Lgs. April 9th/2008. Failure to possess these requisites shall lead to exclusion. Eligible candidates shall be able to provide health services with the same parameters set by the Italian national health plan. Eligible candidates can also be cooperating with a local public or private structure under agreement with the Embassy of Italy in Beijing.

The application must include an offer for the professional services herein detailed, inclusive of costs, taxes, insurances, safety costs, social security and any other fee. Failure to include the aforementioned offer shall lead to exclusion from the selection. No further negotiation on the initial proposed fees shall be possible afterwards.

The offer shall be valid from February 1st 2016 to December 31st 2016.

The Health Physician, within the framework of the Prevention and Protection Service and in close cooperation with the Employer and the Prevention and Protection Supervisor (RSPP), shall be responsible for health supervision in accordance with D. Lgs. April 9th/2008, including:

a) risk evaluation and preparation of the Risk Evaluation Paper ex art. 29 item 1 of D. Lgs. April 9th/2008 in cooperation with the Employer and the RSPP, informing the Workers' Representative for the Safety;

b) precautionary medical evaluation to ascertain the absence of conditions against the worker's assignment in order to evaluate his/her fitness to that specific assignment;

c) periodical medical evaluation of the health condition of the employees and assessment of their fitness to perform their specific assignments. The timing of the assessments, if not specified by the relevant rules and regulations, is generally once per year minimum. This timing can be revised, in line with the risk evaluation;

c) medical assessment upon request of the workers - if the Occupational Health Physician deems it related to professional risks or health conditions which could worsen because of their assignments – in order to evaluate their fitness to perform that specific assignment;

d) medical evaluation in the event of change of assignment in order to assess the employee fitness to that specific assignment;

e) medical evaluation upon termination of the work contract in the events provided for by the regulation;

f) medical evaluations prior employment;

g) medical evaluation to assess the workers' fitness to resume their work in the event of an uninterrupted absence for health reasons longer than 60 days.

Medical evaluations prior employment can be performed by decision either of the Employer or the Health Physician.
